

Celebrating the lives of those babies who have died. Raising funds to:

Reduce the risk of future infant deaths.

In the United States alone, roughly 3,800 otherwise healthy infants under 12 months of age die in their sleep every year. SIDS remains the leading cause of death in infants one month to one year of age. The CJ Foundation for SIDS provides free risk-reduction educational materials to hospitals, health care providers, child care centers and community organizations across the country. In addition, we have provided millions of dollars in grants to community groups to conduct risk-reduction trainings and educate parents.

Support families who have suffered a loss.

The CJ Foundation for SIDS funds programs across the United States which provide bereavement support, most of which have few other sources of funding for such services.

Fund medical research so that no new families have to endure the pain of losing their infant.

Since our founding 15 years ago, the CJ Foundation for SIDS has been at the forefront - providing tens of millions of dollars to leading SIDS researchers at premier research institutions.
